Form No. 471

39 parts

The following Portraits of American Whig Statesmen were originally published in the American Review. The publishers of that journal having been frequently applied to for sets of these plates, have determined to re-issue them in the present form.

To the Lover of Art and to the Student of Character this we feel assured will not be the most uninteresting of books.

From the most defective of these plates to the most meritorious and admirable, there will be found a vast improvement. This improvement is almost an index of the history of the Art of Mezzotint Portrait Engraving in this country from the period of the commencement of the American Review to the present time. This we may say to those interested in Art.

To the Student of Character—Character is displayed by the contour of the human head and the light of the human countenance, and we need hardly say that this collecting together—this placing side by side, the features of the men whom they have studied by their acts and their words, will compose a work which all such will appreciate.
